Which insturally will be the only occasion on which these great artists can be heard at cheep Opera prices.

CARO.

The Director repeats that, notwithstanding the gratuitous services on the night of Madame La Grange and Carl Farmes, it is doubtful whether the expenses can be made, and he is seriously discussed from "spoiling" the regular Opera prices by this dangerous movement. Mr. Ullman has, however, so much confidence in the good sense of the public in general, who must be aware of the necessity of retaining the established prices on regular Opera nights, reinfered imperious by the high expenses, that he is sure the step he has taken will not be considered a "teduction of prices," but prove a sincere desire on his part to afford an intellectual and reinde denertainneant to the masses, in when by these means a love of masic might be the masses, in when by these means a love of mais might be engendered. On Wednesday, Carl Former in the BARBER OF SEVILLE and the fourth act of II, TROVATORE.
